Bingham, of Michigan, Delivered in the United States Senate, May 24, 1860 Immediately after the close of the Revolutionary war, Mr. Jefferson announced the great principles of civil polity which were to lie at the foundation of the new States, to be formed out of what was then the only Territory they possessed; and in 1787, they were formally adopted by Congress, in the promulgation of the ordinance which prohibited the introduction of slavery therein. Every new settler, as he crossed the border of that great Territory, to establish for himself and his children a home, had the solemn assurance of the Government that free labor was never to be degraded by its contact with slavery upon that soil, and that free men could only live there. I shall undertake to show, Mr. President, that this benign policy, the salutary effects of which will be acknowledged as long as we respect the virtues of our ancestors, was the policy of the Government...
